Practice trends we're seeing

The Future of Universal Bonding

Universal bonds are moving beyond flexibility toward reliability and longevity. The future will focus on fewer technique sensitivities, stronger and more durable enamel margins, and clearer clinical protocols rather than multiple bonding choices.

Advances in chemical bonding and moisture tolerance will improve performance in real world conditions, while better integration with digital and indirect materials will simplify workflows. Ultimately, universal bonds are becoming the default adhesive system, valued less for versatility and more for consistent, long term outcomes. Our data shows nearly 2 Universal Bonds sold for every Self Etch Bond.
